Digital Reality Profile: Peyton Jones

Research Date: January 4, 2026

Confidence Level: High (Identity), Medium (Complete Digital Presence)

Executive Summary

Peyton Jones is a recognized church planter, author, and leadership trainer with extensive international experience. He is the CEO of NewBreed Training, an organization focused on training for kingdom expansion and church planting. Jones is the author of "Church Plantology: The Art and Science of Planting Churches" (Zondervan, 2021), described as a best-selling church planting textbook. He has planted churches across three continents and has catalyzed and trained thousands of leaders worldwide. Jones has also served with the North American Mission Board (NAMB), indicating denominational partnership and movement involvement.

Jones's digital presence includes the NewBreed Training organizational website and his published work through Zondervan. The content ecosystem appears focused on church planting methodology, leadership training, and kingdom expansion, with emphasis on practical, field-tested approaches. While the book and training organization provide a solid foundation, opportunities exist for greater content interconnection, digital amplification of training content, and expanded content forms to capture the extensive embodied work (three continents of planting experience, training thousands of leaders).

Key Findings:

- Published author with best-selling church planting textbook (Zondervan, 2021)
- CEO of NewBreed Training (training for kingdom expansion)
- Extensive international experience (church planting across three continents)
- Has trained thousands of leaders worldwide
- Denominational affiliation (NAMB)
- Strong practical credentials and field experience

Primary Opportunities:

- Content repurposing (book chapters → articles, training → courses)
- Content expansion (video series, podcast, article series)
- Digital amplification of training content and speaking engagements
- Content interconnection and ecosystem building
- Improved discoverability and network effects

Movemental Fit: High - Strong alignment with Movemental's target audience (church planters, missional practitioners, movement leaders). Opportunities for content repurposing, ecosystem building, network effects, and digital amplification of extensive embodied work.

Current Digital Presence

2. Leadership Training & Development
3. Kingdom Expansion
4. Practical Church Planting
5. Church Planting as Art and Science

Theological Focus: Church planting, practical theology, kingdom expansion, missional movement

Movement Focus: Church planting movements, kingdom expansion, leadership multiplication, international church planting

Content Organization

Organizational Brand: NewBreed Training (training organization)

Book-Driven: "Church Plantology" as foundational content

Training-Focused: Leadership development and church planting training

To Be Assessed: Content interconnection, series development, ecosystem connectivity

Discoverability Assessment

To Be Assessed:

- SEO indicators (website optimization, search engine visibility)
- Content indexing (appears in search results?)
- Social sharing indicators
- Backlinks and references
- Domain authority indicators
- Cross-platform discoverability

Known: Book is described as "best-selling," indicating some level of recognition and discoverability

Gap Analysis

Embodied Work vs. Digital Expression

Well Represented Digitally:

- Book content ("Church Plantology" - comprehensive textbook)
- Training organization (NewBreed Training website)
- Published author presence (Zondervan)

Potentially Underrepresented:

- Training session content (extent of digital training materials to be verified)
- Speaking/teaching engagements (recordings, transcripts to be verified)
- Church planting experience stories (to be verified)
- Leadership development insights (to be verified)
- International experience lessons (to be verified)
- Practical application examples (to be verified)

Key Gaps:

- Content form diversity (to be verified)
- Content interconnection (to be assessed)
- Digital amplification of training content (to be verified)
- Speaking engagement capture (to be verified)
- Experience documentation (to be verified)

Opportunities for Digital AmplificationContent Repurposing Opportunities:

- Book chapters → blog articles
- Book topics → video series
- Training sessions → course content
- Training sessions → podcast episodes
- Speaking engagements → articles/blog posts
- Speaking engagements → video content
- Church planting stories → case studies
- Leadership insights → article series

Content Expansion Opportunities:

- Expand book topics into series
- Develop training content into courses
- Create video series from training
- Develop podcast from speaking
- Write articles from experience
- Document case studies
- Create leadership development series
- Develop international church planting content

Ecosystem Building Opportunities:

- Connect book to training materials
- Link training to speaking content
- Connect experience to written content
- Build content series across forms
- Create interconnected content ecosystem
- Develop content hub or platform

Movemental Opportunities

What Movemental Would Change

Content Ecosystem:

- Unified content platform for all content forms
- Interconnected content pieces
- Content series development
- Ecosystem building

Discoverability:

- Improved SEO and indexing
- Network effect amplification
- Cross-content discovery
- Increased visibility

Content Development:

- Easier content repurposing
- Content form expansion
- Series development
- Ecosystem growth

Network Connection:

- Connection to other church planting leaders
- Community engagement
- Cross-pollination of ideas
- Movement amplification

Analytics and Insights:

- Unified analytics
- Content performance tracking
- Audience insights
- Engagement metrics

What Would Remain the Same

Voice and Content:

- Peyton Jones's unique voice and perspective
- Content ownership and control
- Theological positions and perspectives
- Teaching style and approach

Existing Content:

- Published book remains as-is
- Existing training materials
- Current content forms
- Established relationships

Organizations and Partnerships:

- NewBreed Training organization
- NAMB affiliation
- Zondervan publisher relationship
- Existing partnerships

Control and Decision-Making:

- Content creation control
- Publishing decisions
- Training program control
- Strategic direction

Network Effect PotentialCross-Discovery:

- Church planting leaders discovering Peyton Jones's content
- Peyton Jones's audience discovering other leaders
- Cross-pollination of ideas
- Movement amplification

Content Interconnection:

- Content connections across leaders
- Thematic connections
- Series development across network
- Ecosystem building

Community Engagement:

- Community around church planting content
- Discussion and engagement
- Peer learning
- Network support

Movement Amplification:

- Church planting movement visibility
- Collective impact
- Movement growth
- Kingdom expansion

What We Will NOT Do

Explicit Boundaries

1. Content Control: Movemental will not control content creation. Peyton Jones maintains full content control, with no editorial control over content. Content decisions remain with Peyton Jones.
2. Theological Positions: Movemental will not influence theological positions. Peyton Jones's perspectives are preserved, with no theological alignment requirements. Diversity of perspectives is welcomed.
3. Existing Relationships: NewBreed Training organization remains independent. NAMB affiliation is preserved. Zondervan publisher relationship is maintained. Existing partnerships continue.
4. Organizational Structure: NewBreed Training remains a separate organization. No organizational changes are required. Independent operation is maintained. Partnership model, not replacement.
5. Content Replacement: Existing content is not replaced. Book remains with publisher. Training organization continues. Additive, not replacement.

Disambiguation

"Peyton Jones" returns several unrelated figures (a computer scientist Simon Peyton Jones of Haskell/GHC fame is the most prominent collision, plus various athletes). The subject is uniquely retrieved by combining the name with: NewBreed Training, Church Plantology, church planting, Sandfields / Wales, @PlantologyPunk. Exclude: Haskell, functional programming, Microsoft Research, GHC.

Notes

- "New Breed" appears both as the org name (NewBreed Training / NewBreed Church Planting) and as a planting ethos. The prior gap-analysis "New Breed church planters framework" is best understood as the NewBreed Church Planting organization / training brand, not a separately documented named framework. Named programs under it are Jump School and CityWide (see frameworks).

Biography

Biography — Peyton Jones

Peyton Jones is an American serial church planter, author, speaker, and trainer who has spent his career reframing church planting as both an "art and a science" and insisting that planting is never the goal but the inevitable result of disciple-making. A native of Huntington Beach, California, born in Washington, D.C., he left a career as a psychiatric and drug-rehab nurse to enter full-time ministry at nineteen, and then spent roughly twelve years planting churches in Wales — by his own description "the most unchurched part of the UK, with less than 1% church attendance." He began as an evangelist at Sandfields, the historic Aberavon church once pastored by D. Martyn Lloyd-Jones, where in 2001 he helped plant its first daughter church, before founding New Breed Church Planting and pioneering unconventional planting locations across what he experienced as a post-Christian frontier. He earned an MA in Theology (Pastoral Studies) from W.E.S.T. (Wales Evangelical School of Theology) in 2010. Returning to the United States, Jones built a training and media footprint around an apostolic, first-century vision of church planting: he authored and rewrote church-planting curriculum for the North American Mission Board (NAMB), ran training centers across North America, served as Content Director for both Exponential and the Through the Word Bible-teaching ministry, and founded NewBreed Training, where he leads the Jump School planter-training program and the CityWide regional-team model. His books — the "punk-rock" apostolic manifesto Church Zero (2013), Reaching the Unreached with Alan Hirsch (2017), the best-selling textbook Church Plantology (2021), and Discipology (2026) — share one through-line: make disciples first, and churches will follow. With Pete Mitchell he co-founded Church Planter Magazine and the long-running Church Planter Podcast, and he now teaches church planting at Calvary University while continuing to train planters worldwide.

Roles

- Serial church planter; author; speaker; outreach consultant
- Founder / CEO, NewBreed Training; founder, NewBreed Church Planting
- Co-founder and co-host (with Pete Mitchell), Church Planter Magazine / Church Planter Podcast
- Curriculum author and regional trainer, North American Mission Board (NAMB)
- Former Content Director, Exponential; Content Director / teacher, Through the Word
- Faculty (church planting), Calvary University

Formation

- Native of Huntington Beach, California; born in Washington, D.C.

- Former psychiatric / drug-rehab nurse; entered ministry at age 19
- ~12 years planting in Wales (c. 1999–2011); evangelist at Sandfields (Aberavon), D. Martyn Lloyd-Jones's historic church
- MA Theology: Pastoral Studies (2010), W.E.S.T. (Wales Evangelical School of Theology)

Coined terms

- Plantology — church planting as art + science (Church Plantology, 2021)
- Discipology — disciple-making as art + science (Discipology, 2026)

Voice Analysis — Peyton Jones

Compiled 2026-05-30 from Goodreads quote page, Church Plantology, Reaching the Unreached, Cracking the Whip, and Outreach Magazine interviews.

Tone & register

Dimension	Value
Tone	Exhortational, urgent, irreverent; reframing and corrective; pastoral but provocative
Register	Punchy, pop-culture-laced practitioner prose; accessible and conversational, not academic

Peyton Jones writes in a punchy, pop-culture-laced, practitioner register. He sets a "science + art" framing against rote method, leans heavily on the book of Acts and the early church, and uses film/adventure imagery (Indiana Jones "raiders of the lost art," "commando," "punk-rock," "Ninja"). His rhetoric is exhortational and reframing: he repeatedly subordinates church-planting to disciple-making.

Recurring phrases: "planting a church should never be our focus", "raiders of the lost art", "first-century churches", "the art and science", "gospel penetration, saturation, and maturation", "if the challenges are the same, then so are the solutions".

Favorite metaphors: raiders of the lost art (Indiana Jones / archaeology), punk-rock church (rebellious, stripped-down), commando / Ninja planter (covert, agile, first-century operative), science vs. art (lab discipline beside contextual craft), ashes of the 21st-century church (resurrection out of decline).

Weighted markers (sum to 100%)

Marker	Target	Weight
Disciple-making-over-church-planting reframing ("if you make disciples, churches get planted")	≥ 0.7	30%
Apostolic / first-century retrieval (Acts, early church as normative model)	≥ 0.6	25%
"Art + science" dual framing (Plantology / Discipology)	0.5–0.8	20%
Pop-culture & adventure imagery (Indiana Jones, punk-rock, commando, Ninja)	0.4–0.7	15%
Aphoristic, rhythmic punch lines (triads, rhymes: "dry up / blow up / grow up")	0.4–0.7	10%

Hallmark lexicon

art and science, plantology, discipology, serial church planter, raiders of the lost art, first-century / 1st century, the book of Acts, gospel penetration / saturation / maturation, disciple-making, multiplication, New Breed, Jump School, commando, punk-rock, the unreached.

Antithesis prohibition

Jones's most-corrected reader misreading is treating church planting itself as the goal. His consistent correction: "The first lesson of church plantology is that planting a church should never be our focus" and "If you plant churches, discipleship may or may not happen. Yet if you devote yourself to making disciples, churches will inevitably be planted." Content in his voice must never frame church-planting as the end or measure success by sites/attendance; planting is downstream of disciple-making. (Derived from Church Plantology quotes via Goodreads.)

Representative verbatim quotes

"The first lesson of church plantology is that planting a church should never be our focus."
— Church Plantology

"If you plant churches, discipleship may or may not happen. Yet if you devote yourself to making disciples, churches will inevitably be planted." — Church Plantology

"The real work of church planting is gospel penetration, gospel saturation, and gospel maturation." — Church Plantology

"Only scripture, we dry up. Only Spirit, we blow up. Take them together, we grow up." — Church Plantology

"To be a church planter and properly exegete your city, you will require a special set of skills. The planter must observe the culture, or they cannot understand it. Once the planter understands the culture, they can intelligently speak to it." — Church Plantology (p. 230)

"If the challenges are the same, then so are the solutions." — Cracking the Whip (on the post-Christian West resembling the apostles' pre-Christian world)

Frameworks

docs/movement_leader_research/_onboarded_leaders/peyton-jones/content/frameworks.md

Frameworks — Peyton Jones

Compiled 2026-06-02. Grounded in Peyton Jones's published work (Church Zero, Reaching the Unreached, Church Plantology, Discipology, Cracking the Whip) and his NewBreed Training programs. Each framework below is documented in his books or his organization's materials; nothing here is invented. Where a formal model name or diagram is not published, that is noted.

Plantology (the art and science of planting churches)

Field	Value
Introduced	2021 (Church Plantology: The Art and Science of Planting Churches)
Components	A reproducible "science" track (biblical, Acts-derived principles) interwoven with a contextual "art" track (reading the city, culture exegesis, contextual creativity); built on the premise that disciple-making — not planting — is the focus
Source	Church Plantology (Zondervan)

Plantology reframes church planting as a discipline with both reproducible scientific principles and contextual artistry, insisting that planting a church should never be the focus — churches are the byproduct of devoted disciple-making.

Discipology (the art and science of making disciples)

Field	Value
Introduced	2026 (Discipology: The Art and Science of Making Disciples)
Components	Recovery of Jesus's original disciple-making model as the engine of multiplication; an "art + science" structure paralleling Plantology; companion Journey to Disciple-Making journal that operationalizes the process
Source	Discipology (Zondervan)

Discipology applies the same "art and science" architecture to disciple-making and presents it as the logical antecedent to Plantology: make disciples first, and churches follow.

Gospel Penetration, Saturation, and Maturation

Field	Value
Introduced	2021 (Church Plantology)
Components	A three-stage measure of real church-planting work — gospel penetration into a context, gospel saturation across it, and gospel maturation of disciples within it; offered as the metric of success in place of attendance, sites, or buildings
Source	Church Plantology (Zondervan)

This framework defines the actual work of church planting as gospel penetration, saturation, and maturation, redirecting the measure of success away from attendance and toward depth of gospel impact.

First-Century / Apostolic Church Retrieval ("Church Zero")

Field	Value
Introduced	2013 (Church Zero: Raising 1st Century Churches out of the Ashes of the 21st Century Church)
Components	A "punk-rock" call to recover the explosive first-century leadership model the modern church has tamed — multiplying disciples and activating every believer's gifts rather than centering one paid leader; the book of Acts treated as the normative pattern
Source	Church Zero (David C. Cook)

Church Zero argues the contemporary church has domesticated the apostolic, Spirit-dependent leadership of Acts, and calls planters to raise first-century churches out of the ashes of the twenty-first-century one.

Raiders of the Lost Art (reaching the unreached)

Field	Value
Introduced	2017 (Reaching the Unreached: Becoming Raiders of the Lost Art, with Alan Hirsch)
Components	Recovery of the "lost art" of Acts-style, Spirit-led evangelism — leading people on an adventure of genuine relationships and gospel conversations toward disciple multiplication; premised on the claim that the post-Christian West mirrors the apostles' pre-Christian world, so "if the challenges are the same, then so are the solutions"
Source	Reaching the Unreached (Zondervan)

This framework recovers the apostolic "lost art" of Spirit-led evangelism for post-Christian contexts, arguing that because the West's challenge again resembles the apostles' pre-Christian world, the same first-century solutions apply.

NewBreed Planter Training (Jump School + CityWide)

Field	Value
Introduced	Wales era → United States; delivered through NewBreed Training
Components	Jump School — a six-month church-planter training program (with a "Core Team Training Series Study Guide"); CityWide — collaborative regional church-planting teams; both grounded in the apostolic "New Breed" planter ethos
Source	NewBreed Training , Exponential

"New Breed" is the organizational ethos brand whose concrete delivery vehicles are the Jump School cohort and the CityWide regional-team model, through which Jones has trained leaders across three continents.

Audience Analysis: Peyton Jones

Status: Complete

Last updated: 2026-06-03

Overview

Peyton Jones serves church planting leaders and practitioners worldwide through NewBreed Training and his textbook Church Plantology (Zondervan, 2021). His audience spans three continents of on-the-ground planting experience.

Primary Audience Segments

Church Planters and Planting Teams

- Practitioners seeking systematic methodology ("art and science" of planting)
- Leaders catalyzed through NewBreed Training programs
- NAMB-adjacent Southern Baptist planting networks (historical affiliation)

Training Cohort Participants

- NewBreed Training alumni — "thousands of leaders" trained globally (per organizational claims)
- Kingdom-expansion focused leaders

Book Readers and Adjacent Learners

- Church Plantology adopters in seminaries and planting networks
 - Readers seeking field-tested, actionable strategies

Content Preferences

- Textbook/systematic format over narrative memoir
- Practical, proven methodologies
- Balance of creative (art) and reproducible (science) framing
- International and cross-cultural planting examples

Peyton Jones: The Fragmentation Story

Status: Complete (abbreviated)

Last updated: 2026-06-03

The Story

Peyton Jones wrote the textbook Church Plantology (Zondervan, 2021) and built NewBreed Training to catalyze church planting leaders across three continents. The book lives on Amazon, Goodreads, and seminary syllabi. The training lives on newbreedtraining.com. The planting stories live in cohort rooms and NAMB-adjacent networks that are not fully indexed on disk.

What is missing is the connective tissue: no confirmed personal blog archive linking book concepts to training modules; no documented podcast hub; no verified social handles; no newsletter capturing the NewBreed audience into an owned list. A planter who reads Church Plantology may never discover the training organization — and vice versa — unless referred through a network edge.

Peyton Jones's fragmentation is the fragmentation of a single-flagship-book trainer whose organizational content and trade publishing are real but not yet unified under one searchable, leader-owned catalog.

A Letter — Reflected Understanding

docs/movement_leader_research/_onboarded_leaders/reflected-understanding/peyton-jones.md

Peyton Jones: Reflected Understanding

A concise reflection spoken back so the language could be endorsed — familiar, but with edges that deepen. (Leader-safe: audience-sizing and commerce analysis are kept in staff notes, not here.)

Calling

You're called to recover the first-century church for a post-Christian world — and to do it by putting disciple-making back in front of church-planting. Not to start a new method, but to retrieve an old one: the explosive, Spirit-dependent, every-member apostolic pattern of Acts that the modern church quietly tamed. Your whole body of work circles one conviction you state plainly — that "planting a church should never be our focus," because "if you plant churches, discipleship may or may not happen. Yet if you devote yourself to making disciples, churches will inevitably be planted." That's the through-line from Church Zero to Reaching the Unreached to Church Plantology to Discipology: planting is the result, never the goal.

You name the moment honestly: the post-Christian West now looks like the apostles' pre-Christian world, so "if the challenges are the same, then so are the solutions." That reframing is the heart of your calling — to send out a "new breed" of planters who read their cities the way Paul read his, who treat planting as both an art (contextual, culture-exegeting, creative) and a science (reproducible, biblical, Acts-derived). Twelve years in Wales — "the most unchurched part of the UK" — earned you the right to say it; the curriculum you wrote for NAMB, the training centers you built across North America, and the thousands of leaders you've catalyzed on three continents are how you keep saying it. You're not selling a platform persona; you're forming planters, and the language you already use — plantology, discipology, raiders of the lost art, gospel penetration, saturation, and maturation — is the right language. It stays tethered to Scripture, to the book of Acts, and to the actual cost of disciple-making before institution.

Existing Content (before the platform we're building)

Where it lives. Your content lives in books (Church Zero with David C. Cook; Reaching the Unreached with Alan Hirsch, Church Plantology, and now Discipology with Zondervan's Exponential Series), in NewBreed Training (the Jump School cohort and the CityWide regional-team model), in podcasts (the long-running Church Planter Podcast with Pete Mitchell, and the newer Church Plantology Podcast), in interviews and columns (Outreach,

New Churches / Send Network, Through the Word, Exponential), and in teaching at the graduate level, currently at Calvary University. Your personal and organizational anchor is newbreedtraining.com; the rest is distributed across publishers, podcast feeds, and the sites of organizations you've served.

Credibility. It's high and field-earned. Church Plantology is a best-selling church-planting textbook, reviewed in the Great Commission Research Journal; you carry an MA in Theology from W.E.S.T. in the Lloyd-Jones lineage at Sandfields; you served as Content Director for Exponential and Through the Word; and you've planted on three continents. The work is credible — the issue isn't authority, it's visibility, connection, and reuse.

How it lives online now. As silos. Books sit on retailer and publisher pages; podcast episodes sit in their feeds, with episode titles and dates largely uncatalogued; your video footprint is a scatter of interviews and book-release conversations rather than a structured library; your columns are spread across several outlets. There is no single place where "everything Peyton has taught about disciple-making, apostolic planting, and reaching the unreached" is gathered, linked, and easy to find. So the corpus doesn't move — it stays where it was first put.

The NOTs the platform addresses directly. Your content is largely not structured and repurposed to live as findable digital content (talks → articles, book themes → courses, the Jump School curriculum → a navigable path); not connected to a personalized AI that reflects your voice and corpus; not optimized for discoverability so searchers for "church planting," "disciple-making," "reaching the unreached," or "first-century church" land on your material first; not interconnected so the books, the podcasts, the NAMB curriculum, and the training programs visibly reference each other; and not owned and unified under one surface you control. The platform is built to speak to each of these — structure and repurpose, an AI that serves your voice, discoverability, interconnection, ownership, and legibility — so your content can move the way you've always wanted disciples to multiply.

Constraints

Leaders carrying an apostolic, disciple-making priority live under time and money constraints that are emblematic, not personal failure. You're running a training organization, hosting podcasts, writing books on a steady cadence, teaching at the graduate level, and still doing the on-the-ground work of forming planters in rooms and cities. Time for content strategy — for turning a podcast back-catalog into searchable teaching, for repurposing Jump School into structured courses, for building a unified digital home — is scarce precisely because the work is with the people. The desire to reach every planter God might send you is there; the hours to make that happen at scale, across every format, typically are not. Those constraints shape every content decision: what gets recorded, what gets written, what becomes a course. A platform that reduces the lift — that helps structure, repurpose, connect, and amplify what you already do — meets those constraints without asking you to become a different kind of leader. It just helps the disciple-making multiply.

This document is a reflected understanding for Peyton Jones, intended to be right to the point, true, and valuable. It is preliminary until reviewed and endorsed.

Welcome Letter

`docs/movement_leader_research/_onboarded_leaders/peyton-jones/welcome-letter.md`

Peyton

You have built one of the most field-tested bodies of church-planting work in the English-speaking world, and you built most of it on the hardest ground you could find. Twelve years planting in Wales, the most unchurched corner of the UK, starting as an evangelist at Sandfields where Lloyd-Jones once preached, and helping plant its first daughter church in 2001. New Breed Church Planting came out of that soil, and NewBreed Training came out of New Breed — the Jump School cohorts, the CityWide regional teams, the curriculum you wrote and rewrote for NAMB, the training centers you ran across North America. Four books carry the argument: Church Zero, the punk-rock manifesto for raising first-century churches out of the ashes of the twenty-first; Reaching the Unreached with Alan Hirsch, on becoming raiders of the lost art; Church Plantology, the best-selling textbook that named planting as both art and science; and now Discipology, which says the quiet part out loud — make disciples first and the churches follow. And under it all, 640-plus episodes of the Church Planter Podcast with Pete Mitchell, plus the newer Church Plantology Podcast, nearly a decade of you talking planters off the ledge and back into the book of Acts.

All of it is somewhere. None of it is in one place. Church Plantology and Reaching the Unreached sit on Zondervan and Amazon. Church Zero sits on David C. Cook. Discipology and its Journey to Disciple-Making journal sit under the Exponential Series with their own product pages, no shared author surface tying them to the rest. Cracking the Whip lives as a free Exponential ebook in one corner; the Jump School Core Team study guide lives in another. Your shorter writing scatters across Outreach Magazine, your New Churches contributor profile at NAMB's Send Network, and Through the Word. The two podcasts run on separate Apple feeds — id662422951 and id1715377957 — with no front door between them. The relational layer fragments along the same seams: the planters Jump School has formed, the leaders CityWide has gathered, the NAMB training-center alumni, the listeners who have ridden 640 episodes with you — all of them held inside platforms you do not own. Your co-authorship with Hirsch puts you one hop from most of the missional conversation, invisible to anyone reading cold. What is missing is the layer above all of it that lets a reader walk from any one piece to every other.

The largest pool of your value has never been written down, and it is the pool most at risk of going unwritten. Twelve years of Welsh planting produced judgment calls — which doors you knocked, which models died, which moves you only ever taught in the room — that never made it into a book. The Jump School curriculum has a study guide, but the reasons behind the sequence, the diagnostic instincts you use to read whether a planter is ready, the way you exegete a city before you ever name a launch date — that lives in your head and in coaching calls. CityWide's collaborative model was lived before it was ever systematized. The disciple-making engine behind Discipology has been demonstrated in a thousand conversations that were never recorded. For a planter whose formation always happened on the field before it happened on the page, naming that gap matters.

This is where Movemental's AI does work that was not previously possible. The inventory you just read — the books, the ebooks, the two podcast feeds, the articles across three outlets, the Jump School and CityWide programs — was compiled by AI sitting with your public corpus for the time it would have taken a human researcher weeks. The same approach now turns toward what is not yet public: AI-assisted interview capture of your Welsh stories, course-note extraction from Jump School, transcription of training sessions you can declassify, dictation that becomes draft and draft that becomes essay. The embodied layer gets surfaced at your pace, not a publisher's. The AI does not replace your voice — the punk-rock cadence, the Acts-shaped conviction, the triads stay yours. Every draft is yours to edit, refuse, or rewrite. The tools do the inventoring and the connective tissue. Authorship stays yours.

This is what the dashboard is built to do, and what we will do with you. First, aggregate. The four books, the journal, the free Cracking the Whip ebook, the articles, both podcast feeds, the Jump School and CityWide material, and the embodied layer as you surface it — pulled into one hub under your name. Second, interconnect. Discipology points at the disciple-making engine in Church Plantology points at the Jump School cohort where it is taught points at the podcast episode where you argue it, every link a reader can actually follow. Third, repurpose. Jump School becomes a public sequence; Reaching the Unreached gets a pathway built around it for planters going after the unreached; the 640 podcast episodes become a browseable archive instead of an expiring feed; the disciple-making argument becomes a series in your own voice. Fourth, amplify. Search reach, network effects, the references that arrive once your work is findable in one place. The work this season is not authorship. It is translation of what you have already authored into a form planters can actually reach.

A year from now, newbreedtraining.com looks different. A disciple-making hub gathers Discipology, the Journey to Disciple-Making journal, the Church Plantology chapters that feed it, and a cohort sign-up. A planting hub gathers Church Zero, Reaching the Unreached, and Cracking the Whip under one heading. Jump School sits as a public sequence rather than a closed cohort. Both podcasts cross-list into one searchable archive. A newsletter exists that did not before. A bivocational planter in a post-Christian town who has never heard of New Breed and was never in a NAMB center finds your free field guide on a Tuesday morning, downloads it, and starts working through the disciple-making engine that afternoon.

This is your next season. The work ahead is making the body of work you have already built reach the planters it was written for. You spent twelve years proving that first-century methods still work on twenty-first-century ground; you have spent the years since training others to do the same. The serial planters you are still trying to multiply — across three continents and counting — need to find your actual voice, your actual frameworks, and your actual library behind a single link. Right now they cannot. Let's fix that.

— Movemental

- Some platforms may not be easily discoverable
- Recent content may not be indexed
- Private or gated content not accessible

Research Methodology

Approach:

- Multiple search queries across different contexts
- Cross-referencing of information
- Verification through multiple sources
- Documentation of findings and gaps

Confidence Level: High for identity verification, Medium for complete digital presence discovery

Next Steps for Complete Research

1. Direct Website Access

- Access NewBreed Training website directly
- Explore full website structure and content
- Document all content forms and volumes

2. Social Media Verification

- Identify and verify all social media profiles
- Document content volumes and engagement
- Assess social media presence

3. Content Platform Discovery

- Discover all video/podcast platforms
- Identify blog/article platforms
- Document course/training platforms
- Verify newsletter platforms

4. Publisher Platform Verification

- Verify Zondervan author page
- Check Amazon and Goodreads pages
- Document book details and reviews

5. Institutional Source Verification

- Verify NAMB affiliation details
- Check conference/speaking platforms
- Document training program details

Source Reliability

High Reliability Sources

- Web search results (multiple confirmations)
- Publisher information (Zondervan - established publisher)
- Organizational website (NewBreed Training - official)

Medium Reliability Sources

- Search result descriptions (may be incomplete)
- Third-party references (need verification)

Sources Requiring Verification

- Social media profiles
- Content platform details
- Institutional affiliations
- Speaking/teaching engagements
- Additional published works

Research Notes

- Initial research phase completed
- Identity verification: High confidence
- Digital presence discovery: Partial (requires further verification)
- Content analysis: Based on known information (requires expansion)
- Gap analysis: Preliminary (requires complete digital presence discovery)
- Movemental analysis: Based on known information (requires expansion)

Recommendation: Continue with direct website access and platform verification to complete digital presence discovery and content analysis phases.
